They play mariachi music and wear large-brimmed Mexican hats. They are mentored by music guru DJ Loose and they create their unique ZingZilla sound just in time for their daily performance which is called 'The Big Zing'. It's a great song and the ZingZillas are all ready to play the Big Zing. When Todd walks in, Panzee persuades him there is a problem over at the coconut hut and he heads off. This is a disaster so Todd sets to work making a new instrument for Zak to play instead. She is going to write a song about a magic wand. But then after a practice, Zak breaks his microphone in his happy attempt and doesn't know how he will sing in the Big Zing. The others think Zak is being too fast. Now they can choose a style that will suit the Granite and Gravel song. Outside, dressed as Auntie, he meets Tang. Back at the clubhouse, Tang is telling the others about the oud and what a magical sound it made. Guest performer: Stuart Zender 359"Tang's Photo Album"Richard BradleyDominic Macdonald28 October 2010 (2010-10-28) It is the Big Day Off on ZingZilla Island. They all love Tang's happy song and can't wait to sing it with him in the Big Zing. Drum is distraught when she can't find Yapple and refuses to practise for the Big Zing. Guest performer: Elio Pace 1313"Tang's Clubhouse"Richard BradleyDenise Cassar20 April 2010 (2010-04-20) Tang has a very complicated guitar piece to play in the Big Zing and really wants to keep practising. DJ Loose was thrilled because he now had some help keeping the coconut hut tidy and the ZingZillas were thrilled because the Beach Byrds could join in with every Big Zing. Meanwhile, Todd has realized that the rubbish in his garden belongs to Zak and returns it to the clubhouse. Todd offers to build him a clubhouse of his own. Over at the glade they discover the orchestra playing Danse Macabre. In the glade, Panzee watches Dance Off Crew doing some street dancing. Back at the clubhouse, Zak tries again. It quickly dawns on the ZingZillas though that the Beach Byrds may well tidy away or even throw out their instruments, so they dash back to the clubhouse to rescue them. Back at the clubhouse, Zak has various bits and pieces of car that Todd is going to add to his banana car to make it look really cool. She is sensitive, fun and always ready to try something new. Todd tells Panzee she must rest for a while, but has an idea on how to get her to the Big Zing in time. They watch a Big Zing, 'Our Island Home' performed with Gamelan Orchestra, Lila Cita, and Silat dancer, Cecily Fay. It's the DJ Loose Radio Show - his very own show, with music, jokes, dancing and much fun. Zak loves the sweet sound of the mandolin in it. Back at the clubhouse, Drum is banging a pot, trying to wake Todd up, but she can't - he is fast asleep. However Todd soon finds out there is no problem at the hut and moves on. While doing their exercises Zak makes up a tune and some words for them to exercise to. Drum realises they may have fallen into Todd's garden and when she goes to ask Todd, they fall off his head as he bends to listen to her. There will be songs by the ZingZillas plus a special act by the Moaning Stones, Granite and Gravel. The ZingZillas all scratch their heads, trying to come up with a solution. Zak brings in a tray of bananas, which Drum accidentally knocks over. Panzee sings brilliantly but her audition is interrupted by Tang making a loud honking sound with his hooter. The Beach Byrds have put her drums out of reach on top of the roof! Drum isn't going to be able to get her drums back in time for the Big Zing. She loves exploring sounds and enjoys making rhythms and noise. In the glade, DJ introduces Bond, a string quartet. Now she's ready to play the song with her toothbrush! Guest performer: Peter Moss 6513"Let's Play"TBATBA7 December 2011 (2011-12-07) The ZingZillas wake up and ask Todd for an idea for the day's song. In the glade, Zak watches Simon Mayor play the mandolin. He is an orangutan who plays guitars (acoustic & electric) and backing vocals. On 11 June 2012, ZingZillas aired its last-ever episode "Picnic Day" before ceasing operations for good. When Zak announces that he will not be playing in the Big Zing, Panzee says that neither will she. Back at the clubhouse, Zak tries to come up with lyrics for the hat song. Drum loves it and wants to press buttons to make sounds in the Big Zing. Panzee wonders if the kora will give her any ideas for cheering up Gravel and Granite. Neither of them realises that the slide is meant to come off and think they have broken it. Unfortunately Zak's shortcut takes them in completely the wrong direction and they areally big noise on their Taiko Drums. Guest performers: Dr Lonnie Smith, Jamire Williams & Jonathan Kreisberg 2424"Tang's Hooter"Richard BradleyAdam Redfern30 June 2010 (2010-06-30) Tang has been working on a quiet and gentle song for the Big Zing and can't wait to play it to Zak. In the glade, Zak settles down next to DJ. The ZingZillas love the tappy, slappy sound, and DJ explains the technique is called slap bass because of the way you slap the guitar strings with your thumb. The sound is so warm and friendly. Zak and Drum quickly tidy all the rubbish up and Drum throws it back over the balcony and back into Todd's garden - just in time for Todd and Tang to arrive back. But Todd's machine is not much help. They dash back to compose an electric guitar song. Granite isn't very impressed by Gravel's singing and so they decide to count coconuts instead. The guestions are on the four sections of the orchestra - strings, woodwind, brass and percussion. DJ Loose introduces the BBC Big Band and the Manchester Rhythm Tap in the glade. But it's too late, Todd has wrapped the instrument around Zak and left him to practise. The band decide to practice the Making A Big Noise song without Drum but it doesn't sound right. Panzee is thrilled and races back to tell the others. They play skiffle music. Zak thinks they look brilliant and are perfect for the ZingZillas rock 'n' roll song. There is only one thing missing - the ZingBoppers! In the glade, DJ meets up with the ZingBoppers, who agree to dance in his birthday song. Todd keeps saying sorry. But the ZingBoppers! In the glade, DJ meets up with the ZingBoppers. can't wait to tell DJ about it so they head off to find him. Gravel and Granite explain that they have had nothing to do all day and they want the ZingZillas can play a rock 'n' roll song! They ask Todd if he would like to dance to the song but sadly Todd has to say no. It keeps rocking and rolling all over the place. Once again though the squeaking of Panzee's boots stops the rehearsal and Panzee thinks she needs to practice even more and heads off to the Moaning Stones' beach. Panzee really wants Todd to play in the Big Zing. They sing and play Listen to the Wind. Meanwhile Zak and Tang sit with Drum in the glade and watch Frank Perry play notes by tapping bowls around him. Unbeknown to Zak, Todd is trying out his latest banana-picking invention on the other side of the bush. The ZingZillas decide to watch two of their favourite Big Zings, and then choose one to end the show with. Tang thinks this will be perfect music for their hat song. Panzee thinks it will be perfect for her family show. However, Todd's machine isn't working properly and is so noisy that the ZingZillas can't hear what Todd is saying. The ZingZillas decide to write a song called Everyone's Different. Zak knows a short cut so they jog off. Back in the jungle, Todd gets out his Noise-A-Tron - a device that detects which direction a sound is coming from. She still wants to fly. Tang is very unhappy with how the song sounds with the hooter and finally tells Zak the truth. He asks the others and they recall their favourite performances. When it's sorted out, he apologises to the Beach Byrd, whose name is Laverne. The ZingZilla Rock 'n' Rollin'. Drum is feeling naughty and she hides under a pile of clothes and sneaks out before the band start. They're ready to play! When Zak and Tang arrive back, Judge Tang is very unimpressed. He explains that going on tour is a bit like going on holiday. Todd explains that even if you cannot play guitar it is fun to pretend you can - all you need is a broom! Zak has a go with his broom and really enjoys it. Zak isn't very happy about this and when it is suggested that they sing a washing-up song while they are doing it, he dashes off to the glade to see the guest. It's a song about all the different ways of communicating, and Zak yodels in the middle. DJ Loose introduces Bond, a string quartet, who are going to play a waltz. It works again until Zak mentions Yapple again! Luckily Todd finds Yapple again! Luckily Todd finds yapple in his tool box and returns her to Drum. In the clubhouse, Panzee has been busy making oompah hats with the feathers the Beach Byrds gave her. Zak boasts that he never says sorry. Todd suspects that she was excited about the Big Night Zing. In the glade, the ZingZillas watch BJ Cole play their rock guitars, so they decide to do a rock music Big Zing and head back to the clubhouse to rehearse. They split into teams and head off into the jungle to see if they can find a suitable present. But she can't reach the highest note. Guest performer: Simone Rebello 7018"Tiny or Tall"TBATBA25 January 2012 (2012-01-25) Drum isn't too happy at being called tiny, but a recorder group with instruments of differing sizes makes her see that size doesn't matter. It is the perfect sound for the Big Zing. Meanwhile on the beach, Granite has decided to go jogging. Todd persuades Zak to water the aloha flower. They try thrash metal, bossa nova and reggae. Tang, Panzee and Zak manage to get to their guitars and microphone in time but Drum is too late. Every time he makes a robot voice he starts to cough. Now they are ready to play! Guest performer: Chucklefoot 7220"Granite's Glasses"TBATBA27 January 2012 (2012-01-27) DJ Loose presides over another edition of the DJ Loose Radio Show. Panzee is getting a little tired being a statue, but she is still determined to be a statue all day. In a few moments he starts to feel better. Panzee tells the Beach Byrds to go and have a good climb while the ZingZillas think of a song. In the glade, DJ Loose introduces Sharon Shannon, Jim Murray, Dezi Donnelly, Michael McGoldrick and the North West Celtic Dance Ladies. There's no Big Zing so Panzee decides to go and play on the beach, Drum decides to play in the jungle and Zak decides to have a sleep in the clubhouse. Zak is not happy though - he really wants to play rock guitar too and announces that he does not want to be in the Big Zing unless he can play guitar. The ZingZillas decide to do an oompah Big Zing. She yodels for Zak, who absolutely loves the sound she is making. He takes nice photos of Tang, Zak and Drum but when it's Panzee's turn she swats away a fly just as he takes the photo. Zak carries on getting faster and faster. These will be great instruments for the thunder-and-lightning song. No one knows it but the sticker is now stuck to Todd's back. Guest performers: Justin & Dan Hawkins 802"New Banana Car"Michael TownerTony Reed24 April 2012 (2012-04-24) DJ introduces Urban Strawberry Lunch, who play instruments made up of bits and pieces of old cars that they have found. Back at the clubhouse the ZingZillas rehearse a line dancing song. Granite and Gravel are thrilled with their didgeridoos and can't wait to play them in the Big Zing - which is lucky because the last coconut falls, so it's that time of day. He and Panzee rush off to write the song. All he can do is clap hands, wiggle his fingers and wave. Although Todd can't actually communicate with them, the ZingZillas like the beat of Todd's bumpy beats in it for the Big Zing. There is a whole lot of guidance on stemless glass that provides expert females's point of views and also ideas on exactly how to be and also be delighted, with her spouse or guy. They offer to swap some feathers for it and Panzee agrees. Todd likes nothing more than a good mystery, so he suggests they look for some clues. Tang has a brilliant idea. The ZingZillas love this plan and rush off to the beach. The dreamy sound of the harp gives Tang an idea! The Band can write a lullaby to send Drum to sleep. DJ Loose is worried too. Panzee is even more upset than ever - until she sees Todd's photo. Panzee and Zak think the ZingZillas should go on tour too. Just then Tang and Drum rush in with a mattress they borrowed from Todd. DI Loose introduces Michele Montolli, who plays the double bass. Panzee follows her to the glade and discovers the Taiko drummers for herself. More coconuts are dropping and they still don't have a prince for the Big Zing Opera' It's a disaster! Following another spot of potato digging Todd is in the bath again. DJ is due to get back soon, so in a panic Zak snatches up the aloha flower and dashes off to hide it. Sadly neither the Tang and Zak team nor the Panzee and Drum team can find anything. DJ has a letter from Granite saying that his favourite Big Zing's is Thunder and Lightning and he is the one in the smart glasses. Luckily DJ Loose comes to the rescue again and helps untangle Zak from the odd instrument. The other ZingZillas love the sound of his scatting and think it's perfect for the Big Zing. What are they going to do? At the end of the song the tired Drum does drift away to sleep - finally. In the glade, DJ introduces Zak to the Mahatma Skiffle Orchestra, which consists of a spoon player, a tea chest bass and a cups player. Tang wonders if it is a good thing to say sorry. They compose the words to a birthday song. The Moaning Stones are worried. Over the balcony in Todd's garden, though, they notice Todd wearing an apron just like the ones the Beach Byrds wear. DJ Loose has printed all the photographs and Zak, Tang and Drum are really pleased with theirs. They need to rehearse without being disturbed so the ZingZillas decide to move to the coconut hut. Drum gets very excited, but Zak pretends that he never gets excited. Tang explains to Drum that a comet is a fiery ball of gas and rock and ice that flies through space. While they rehearse their fun and upbeat song about friendship but Panzee is so upset about her photo she finds it hard to be upbeat. In the glade, the ZingZillas watch La Cuba Ritmo, a salsa band, perform with two salsa dancers. Zak thinks that having the fan around means nothing can go wrong. Tang decides to look for somewhere else to practise but no matter where he goes he gets disturbed. Fed up with Zak's behaviour, Tang, Drum and Panzee leave to set up a new band! Zak realises his mistake and decides to write them a fan letter to persuade them to get together again in time for the Big Zing. Zak is struggling to think of words for a twinkly lights song. So Zak, Tang and Panzee rehearse without her. Can Zak track them down in time for the Big Zing? Panzee is thrilled and heads straight off to look for some flowers over at the Coconut Hut. She thinks they look like a fairytale princess and prince. Tang realises the way the music is played makes him feel different and so rushes back to the clubhouse to play their Big Zing song in a different way in order to cheer Drum up. - which doesn't satisfy Panzee. The ZingZillas watch their hairy diggles race off into the jungle and over to the beach where Todd is at the finish line. Tang is again very unimpressed with Todd's untidy garden. When she asks if she can have it, Tang isn't so sure, but when Panzee offers to swap a banana for it, Tang says yes. Another loud groan from the banana-picking machine sends him fleeing yet again with only one piece of bamboo. Panzee's family show has been saved, just in time for the Big Zing! When they arrive, they discover the whole place, including DJ Loose, covered with dust sheets. When he returns to the clubhouse, the others can't understand why he only collected one stick and remind him that they need more than one to make their panpipes. The ZingZillas are ready to play! Guest performer: Colin Currie 542"Disco Lights"Michael TownerAlexandra Owen22 November 2011 (2011-11-22) The ZingZillas wake up and ask Todd for an idea for the day's song. Drum loves the dancing and is soon joining in. When they have finished practising, they think they are ready for the Big Zing, but then Panzee has a problem. Tang doesn't think the hooter will sound right with his quiet and gentle piece but doesn't have the heart to tell Zak and so he decides to hide the culprit. The ZingZillas enjoy watching a flamenco performance with Spanish guitar and a flamenco dancer. In the glade DJ Loose introduces them to the BMQ - a very loud rock band. Todd uses his ideas machine but it takes too long for Zak. Auntie Dot thoroughly enjoys the show. The ZingZillas decide they need to cheer Granite and Gravel up. Up in the clubhouse the ZingZillas decide to do a Big Zing all about playing together. The battery on the camera is now completely flat and he can't take an alternative photo of Panzee. Afterwards, Panzee isn't looking where she is going and she trips on a tree stump and hurts her knee. present and really wants him to play it in the Big Zing. Drum gets back to the glade and then decides she wants her cushion too. The ZingZillas have decided to do a didgeridoo Big Zing and although it sounds fantastic, Panzee feels really sad about the Moaning Stones never celebrating their birthdays. But eventually they see him laying down in the warm sunshine. He is also playing a slow, sleepy melody that is perfect for their song. Todd heads off to see if there are any jobs to do at the Moaning Stones Beach, but he spots the Stones in party hats and he begins to guess what is great! But when they check on Todd, he is still fast asleep. Before they can dance, they have to learn the dance moves. Instead of being a nice photo of all of them falling over. The ZingZillas gather in the glade to hear Beats of Polynesia, a Hawaiian group. Then Panzee has a brilliant idea - as Drum likes copying so much, and line dancing is all about copying then that is what the song Should be about - copying! They could call the song Why Don't You Copy Us Too? Instead of an idea, it starts to make rumbling and crashing sounds. Bellatrix makes all the beaty noises with her mouth. DJ Loose introduces them to Chris Lowe, who is playing the trombone. Panzee doesn't really like playing hide and seek and very quickly decides to use the bells to call them back. However, Zak thinks they don't need the flute because they have the hooter. He dashes back to the others. The ZingZillas wish they could keep cool too. On Monday 4 October 2010, "ZingZillas: The Album" was released on CD and as a digital download, reaching #1 in the iTunes Children's Chart on the first day. He is listening to the rock music and playing rock broom guitar. The only person he finds to play his happy song to is Yapple - Drum's stuffed toy pineapple! As he sings his song he realises that because of him the others have all had a happy day even though they haven't heard his song. DJ catches him in the act and advises that he should tell Zak the truth. Drum suggests he looks through Todd's telescope, but when Zak tries he can't see anything - because it's the middle of the day and telescopes only work well at night. He knows that the ZingZillas will be very disappointed by the news. Tang still can't decide on his favourite. Within this piece of music there is a solo violin and the ZingZillas realise the name for a piece played on its own is a solo. Panzee loves the sound and wonders if Julian will play a duet with her. But what good is wrapping paper with no gift to wrap? He should really be drinking water instead on such a hot day but he likes the way the bubbles tickle the back of his nose. They play the song and it sounds great, but at the end of the practice, Zak makes some off cleaning day and so, while the Beach Byrds are off cleaning the whole island, he'll be their waiter for the day. At the end of the practice, Zak makes some off cleaning the whole island, he'll be their waiter for the day. changes to the lyrics. Without the Beach Byrds, though, the ZingZillas think the coconut hut is too quiet so they move to the glade where they and the box up, beautiful twirly music plays and the ballerina turns around. Meanwhile, the sun has moved and as it shines directly on the flower, the flower wilts. Zak explains to Drum what an echo is and the ZingZillas decide to write a lullaby. Soon the whole island is on the move. When he tries to stop it shaking, he holds it by a pair of reins. As soon as she puts them on though the boots start to squeak and the squeaky sound is very annoying. Zak decides he'd like to play the trombone. He is a mandrill and has a ideas machine that always breaks down, Todd is performed and voiced by Aiden Cook. The ZingZillas love the sound and decide to do a Big Zing all about fun and friendship. The ZingZillas gather together in the clubhouse to rehearse the beatboxing song. Now that the wand is mended she can borrow it and sing the Big Zing. Unsourced material may be challenged and removed. The Beach Byrds have to rush back and forth to do two jobs at once - counting the saxophone is straight - she thought that saxophones were curved like Laverne's. Both Panzee and Tang want to be the lead singer and so to help him decide who it should be DJ Loose suggests they hold an audition. Drum wants to stay and help Todd with his new clothes dryer so just Panzee, Tang and Zak jog off into the jungle. A bluegrass band Kickin' Alice is accompanied by a troop of Appalachian cloggers. Looking at the cello sticker gives her more confidence and she manages to play the piece perfectly. Drum and Todd hear the music drifting through the jungle and rush to the glade to investigate. The ZingZillas are all back together and Tang is happy with his solo - Just in time for the Big Zing. Zak wants to dance with bells on his ankles - just like a morris dancer - so Panzee dashes off to see if there are any in the dressing up box. If Panzee does some Irish dancing, she can dance and be a statue at the same time. DJ Loose is the island's sloth DJ. So for the first time Zak sings the magic words 'I'm sorry'. But they have lost Tang - where can here are any in the dressing up box. be? The ZingZillas decide that the Big Zing should be a boogie woogie song but every time Zak opens his mouth he hiccups and produces a stream of bubbles. When they have finished Panzee decides she wants to do a line dancing song for the Big Zing. Panzee decides a stream of bubbles. Spread the Word. It soon gets very annoying and Panzee drags Drum off to the glade to stop her annoying the others. The clubhouse is tidy but Zak still hasn't come up with any words for the Big Zing. Each time they try to play it faster and faster. Zak realises that perhaps he shouldn't have been so rude to Panzee. Gravel and Granite then send Todd to get popcorn, so goes off, and comes back utterly exhausted. Having picked all the rubbish up, Zak throws it over the balcony, where it lands all over Todd's garden. Here the Beach Byrds had settled in and decided they were going to stay and live on the island. Panzee tells everyone the plan: she will make the cake, Zak will make the streamers, Tang can find the right music for the song and Drum has to keep Todd away from the clubhouse to tell the others. Guest performers: Feets of Amazement, Colin Currie, Dance Off Crew 7321"I'll Grow Flowers for You"TBATBA30 January 2012 (2012-01-30) The ZingZillas play a flower song. Then they all watch Hiten Ryu Daiko, the Japanese Taiko drummers; play 'Making A Big Noise'. Drum instinctively starts dancing again and they realise they've found just the sound they need for the Big Zing. When it's Tang's turn to audition Panzee gets her own back by blowing really hard on a tuba halfway through Tang's song. Tang thinks this is a great lyric for the song, so the ZingZillas practice their race song, You Can Really Do It if You Try. Zak, Tang and Drum gather together in the clubhouse to rehearse their new song. The ZingZillas happily play along while Granite and Gravel aren't happy. Tang thinks it is perfect for a huffing and puffing song. So DJ explains that an aloha flower needs two things, plenty of shade and plenty of water to keep it healthy. The yellow submarine is sometimes seen in the sea near the island. However, at the moment that Panzee is supposed to dance, all she does is fall over. In the Clubhouse, the ZingZillas rehearse a salsa song. Just then Todd joins them and suggests Gravel and Granite watch their favourite shows, eat snacks and invite some of their friends over. She loves it and notices that the flashing lights really suit disco music. This appeals to Zak. So Gravel and Granite have nothing to do. Drum makes her way into the clubhouse where she grabs her cushion and slips past Panzee on her way out. Before Tang gets a chance to do it though, Todd finds the hooter again and Zak rushes off with it back to the clubhouse for the rehearsal. Maybe the beautiful sound of Nicola Benedetti playing violin can help them. Todd was supposed to be showing the Beach Byrds around the island but they'd already headed off before he arrived at the coconut hut. Tang explains that Irish dancers move their top halves still like statues. Now all Panzee needs is a magic wand to finish off the story. Drum loves it! She then decides to go and fetch her stuffed toy pineapple, Yapple. The ZingZillas agree that bagpipes are perfect for their welcome Auntie Dot song. The ZingZillas now have a great idea for the song and they have practised the song, they ask Tang which cool dance head singer who isn't exhausted. The next song is Shopping, featuring Paul Patrick on marimba. Drum thinks it sounds like thunder and lightning. DJ introduces Mariachi El Mexicano. After they have practised the song, they ask Tang which cool dance head singer who isn't exhausted. is going to do. However, Zak is very upset because his special breakfast banana has gone missing, and he thinks someone has eaten it. Panzee however is very upset with hers and thinks she looks silly - she doesn't want to send it to her fans. The ZingZillas gather together in the clubhouse to play Listen to the Wind. The main characters are primates: Zak, Tang, Panzee and the youngest, Drum. Tang explains to Drum that when then Stones close their eyes the whole Island goes to sleep. In the glade, Panzee sees Guo Yue play the Chinese bamboo flute. Zak is thrilled and hangs the fan letter up for all to see Granite and Gravel like reggae best. It is a really beautiful song. This is a problem! Tang wonders how Drum can belt out a beat. Now they have found him in time to play the Big Zing! I'm gonna just try to focus on the present and remember that I don't need to have all the answers today. Panzee decides she'd better try the glade for an idea. But Todd's TV doesn't seem that there is a problem and follow Zak as he heads back to the bamboo bush for yet another attempt. Panzee is sat on the beach, still feeling sad. The Beach Byrds think Panzee's squeaking boots are a mouse and the constant squeaking really tests Granite's nerves! After a short practice at the coconut hut, Panzee thinks she's ready for the Big Zing and heads back to the clubhouse to show the others. Then, at the last minute Auntie Dot appears on a banana car, driven by the Beach Byrds who work in the coconut hut and say everything tunefully. The site itself is not for young people or teens , but there are several examples of tumblers that have milf themes. The others agree and so they decide to do something to celebrate Granite and Gravel's birthdays. Tang rushes back to the clubhouse to play their music in a calm way. Eventually the ZingZillas found Todd and together they found a trail of Beach Byrd feathers leading all the way back to the coconut hut. But they do manage to get some wrapping paper from Todd. Tang tries to tell Drum but when he says Big Night Zing she dashes off in excitement. In the glade, DJ introduces Mukul Acharya who plays the harmonium. The show is otherwise going really well and with only one song left, Panzee is confident that nothing can go wrong - until Auntie Dot requests a performance by her favourite nephew Todd. Drum laughs as she thinks it looks like Todd is riding a horse! The others think that riding horses is a good idea for a song. One of the musicians is playing the dhol drum and the beat of the drum tells the dancers to do a different step. Drum has her castanets back and so the ZingZillas rehearse again. Todd suggests they go and play on the beach, and Panzee has a brilliant idea - why don't they write a Let's Play song for the Big Zing? The ZingZillas gather together in the clubhouse to rehearse their new song Giddy Up and Go! They love playing the song and pretending to ride horses. Tang points out that all Todd can do is clap hands, wiggle his fingers and wave. Drum has an idea - they can create didgeridoos from the cardboard tubes in the wrapping paper. The ZingZillas then play the new song. They are all really looking forward to the Big Zing until Todd explains that he won't be able to finish Zak's car in time. Drum suggests a magic carpet! Perfect! The ZingZillas play a song called Magical Carpet Ride. Todd presses the remote, there is a loud explosion and the projector blows up! They can't watch any more films, but DJ appears with a solution. They were having a lovely holiday and couldn't wait to see the whole island. Panzee realises that the sounds of the synthesiser are perfect for a song about space. So Tang tries out the scratching move and it works! Now the ZingZillas are ready to play. Panzee is thrilled the show started so well but quickly becomes concerned again when Todd does further over-enthusiastic whacks on his gong whilst introducing Granite and Gravel's mango-blowing act. In the glade, Panzee watches the Manchester Disco Crew dance to disco music. A sunny piece of music coming from the glade sounds perfect for his happy song - it's the happy, jazzy sound of the vibraphone. Panzee searches the coconut hut and the Moaning Stones beach before spotting Drum crossing the jungle. Todd asks the machine, but it goes haywire, spitting out musical style after musical style. Tang can't wait to play his song to the others but each time he finds someone to play it too they need his help instead. BBC News. Gravel, however, gives a massively powerful blow and not only blows the net away but also blows the net away but also blows. MacdonaldAlison Stewart10 December 2010 (2010-12-10) With the help of the sounds of the bassoon, Zak, Tang, Panzee and Todd search ZingZilla Island for a strange little creature known only as the Drumbaloola. They head to the glade, where they watch Matt Gooderson playing keyboards and music with many sounds and musi and buttons. The ZingZillas want to sing a song that is all about climbing trees, being happy and free. It's a great success. A very sad Panzee heads back to the clubhouse but before she gets there bumps into Todd who is still trying to fix his gate. The gentle music sends everybody to sleep. Panzee is thrilled with this. 6614"Listen to the Wind "TBATBA8 December 2011 (2011-12-08) The ZingZillas wake up and ask Todd for an idea for the day's song. Over at the coconut hut, Tang about. Todd is worried his machine will not work so he decides to use a magic fairy wand. Panzee falls in love with salsa dancing, and in particular the salsa girl's yellow costume and bright yellow necklace. Zak asks him what a telescope does and Todd explains that you use it to see things in space. They are worried that the machine might break down. Panzee loves them so much she invents her own street dance move, the Winning Spinning. After seeing some Andean pipers in the glade, the ZingZillas decide that they should make some panpipes for Zak to play in the Big Zing. It works until Zak mentions Yapple, sending Drum into a very bad mood. Zak starts to practise scatting but just can't seem to get it right. Tumbler is likewise a great area to find recommendations on dating, connections, sex, love, and anything else that an grown-up woman might need. At the end of the song the ZingZillas are very pleased with the results. She hurries off to join the other ZingZillas on the beach. 326"Aloha Flower"Tom PooleJessica Sandys-Clarke25 October 2010 (2010-10-25) Zak offers to look after DJ Loose's aloha flower for the day. Panzee is thrilled Todd has fixed it. ^ "Title: Zingzillas: World Music Tour". Although four are shown, only the middle pair called Granite and Gravel talk. Panzee suggests that while Todd looks for his hat, they should write a hat song. However, Todd gets a phone call from Auntie Dot to say she is stuck in the jungle and will not make it to the Big Zing. As they try and rehearse the Big Zing they realise Zak has made promises to them both. Back on the beach, Gravel calls for him to come back - there are coconuts to count! Guest performers: Justin and Dan Hawkins, Paul Patrick 9719"Robotic Beat"Iwan WatsonTony Reed31 May 2012 (2012-05-31) A problem with the TV inspires Zak to start doing a robot voice, which makes him cough a little. They head to the clubhouse to rehearse. Zak shouts that it is supposed to be noisy, but Panzee says it hurts her ears. They have to try and blow a mango into the back of a football net. Retrieved 2 September 2020. All he found was a banana skin with no banana in it. So she and Drum visit the glade where DJ Loose introduces them to Simone Rebello playing the glockenspiel. The ZingZillas gather together in the clubhouse to rehearse Panzee's street dance song. Tang explains that he's going to try and use the bellows to make the oompah sound he wants for the Big Zing but when they rehearse the bellows just don't sound right. Todd starts the machine up and it breaks down. The ZingZillas play the Big Zing with Martin McKay on bagpipes. This is just too much for Granite and he blows his top. He tells them the quickest way back but even so he's not sure they'll make it in time for the Big Zing. Eventually the ZingZillas give up. Several of these might also reveal real acts of extramarital relations too. DJ Loose explains that the didgeridoo is a very old instrument and when Panzee tells the Moaning Stones all about it she findsed. out that even though they are also very old neither of them have ever celebrated their birthdays. "New great ape species identified". But then back at the clubhouse the ZingZillas tease Drum with the Fuzzy and Lily guitar; it is then that Drum says she wants proper names, or she won't play the Big Zing - which turns the big problem into a disaster Guest performer: Dame Evelyn Glennie 5125"DJ Loose's Radio Show"Helen ScottTom PooleRichard BradleyDominic Macdonald17 December 2010 (2010-12-17) DJ Loose introduces a very special show. He declares that he cannot write anything for the Big Zing until he finds out who ate his banana. He rushes back down to Todd's garden to look for his words, in time for the Big Zing. In every episode from series 3, they wake up and ask Todd for an idea for the day's song. The ZingZillas rehearse DJ Loose's special birthday song Hangin' Loose - they all play and DJ sings. Zak rushes in with Todd's enormous piece of paper with all the musical styles the machine printed out earlier. The ZingZillas all meet up at the glade and watch a performance by boogie woogie player Elio Pace. They think of a song while they are listing all the fun things you can do at a fair. Zak immediately panics, running round and round until he bumps into the tree, dislodging the Beach Byrds. Zak thinks a new sound for the Big Zing will help him come up with some words so DJ takes them to listen to Julian Bliss playing clarinet in the glade. That gives her an idea for the day's song. In the glade, Panzee and Zak see Colin Currie, a percussionist, playing the timpani and the thunder sheet. But the song is so beautiful and so soothing that all the ZingZillas fall asleep! So DJ, Gravel, Granite, the Beach Byrds, Todd and the ZingBoppers all shout 'wake up ZingZillas!' This does the trick and the ZingZillas wake up, just in time for the Big Zing! Guest performer: George Panda 9921"Washing Up"Michael TownerTony Reed4 June 2012 (2012-06-04) Todd demonstrates a new attachment for his ideas machine that makes it wash dishes, but the machine goes into the Big Zing! Zak decides that they need a banana break. However it is now evening and time to wake her up! The ZingZillas gather to play the Big Night Zing Drift by Drift and time to wake her up! The ZingZillas gather to play the Big Night Zing Drift by Drift and Drift by Away accompanied by the harp. The others are not impressed and Panzee promises to play properly and so they rush off and hide again. While Todd goes into his cave to clean up the ZingZillas rehearse their song with Tang's music. They combine Drum's Bhangra dancing with Zak's bouncing exercise song to create a magnificent Bhangra Big Zing But Todd is sitting down in his cave. All the time coconut clock and the ZingZillas don't have their song ready for the Big Zing. They love the idea of leaving the island and even decide to do the Big Zing on the boat. She resembles a golden lion tamarin who plays drums, percussion and backing vocals, is played by Rachelle Beinart, Cecily Fay and Amy Collins and her voice is by Penni Tovey.[3] Other characters Todd is the 'father figure'. In the meantime DJ Loose introduces Zak to Cleo Laine and the art of scatting. Panzee and Tang love the music and dancing and think it would make a great sound for Zak to dance to. 9416"Hangin' Loose" Michael TownerDominic Macdonald28 May 2012 (2012-05-28) It's DJ Loose's birthday and Zak decides to ask DJ himself. Drums sees Cherisse Osei in the glade. In a jungle clearing nearby, Panzee sets up a wish stall but she discovers that she can't actually make wishes come true. As Zak tries to find somewhere guiet to hide he bumps into Tang who begs Zak to pick him. They soon discover that the Drumbaloola looks very familiar! Guest performer: Karen Geoghegan 4721"Home"Richard BradleyMike James13 December 2010 (2010-12-13) DJ Loose reminisces about how he used to go on tour when he was in a band. Guest performer: Matt Gooderson 3913"Trombone Trouble"Tom PooleAnna Starkey1 December 2010 (2010-12-01) The ZingZillas hear a cool new sound coming from the glade and go to check it out. Todd uses his ideas machine but it breaks down as usual. The song sounds great, but Zak can't think of any good words. He plays a gentle piece of music followed by a more upbeat, funky and jazzy piece. Todd uses his ideas machine but it starts to shake. The ZingZillas gather together in the clubhouse to rehearse Panzee's Sunshine Song. Archived from the original on 26 August 2011. This time Panzee twirls Drum around, and as she does so the castanets accidentally fly out of the clubhouse and land in Todd's postbox. She dashes off to the Moaning Stones Beach and borrows two-halves of a spare coconut. He plays the ZingZillas music made by real people in the glade. However, Zak and Panzee get so excited about having a go on the trombone they end up pulling it apart. After they have listened to the morris music, Zak gets very excited about dancing a morris dance. Then Zak comes up with a brilliant solution - that's all Todd needs to do! Todd can handjive! They play the song again and Todd quickly learns how to handjive. Later, he manages to see them in the jungle, where he thinks he already has the one man band, so it isn't as easy as Drum thinks. Zak and Drum both demonstrate cool dance moves and then they play their new song Catch That Beat. Zak accidentally says yes to Tang and then does the same thing to Panzee when she begs him. They love the way the strings make a bendy sound and Drum suggests they create a sitar Big Zing. Drum already has her toothbrush ready! The others tell her to keep it safe. Tang really wants to play the tuba in the Big Zing, so he offers to swap the banana for the tuba, but the Beach Byrds aren't interested. Drum thinks the machine is great fun, and while Todd's back is turned, she rushes off to have some fun with it around the island. They rush off the beach togethe to play the Big Zing - friends again. The ZingZillas think this is a brilliant idea for the song. It will be perfect for the Brush Your Teeth song instrument for their song. It's the perfect jogging and moving, dancing and grooving song for the Big Zing so they decide to head back to the clubhouse to practise it with Drum. In a recently started five-minute version called Zingzillas Zingbop, the submarine does very near the viewpoint, showing children inside the submarine through its portholes; those children later take part in the programme's singing and dancing session, as if (in the world of the story) the submarine is the usual transport for guests to and from the island. Before others have a chance to say anything Zak dashes off to the glade. Zak can't balance a banana on his nose, Drum doesn't get a second Yapple and Tang isn't turned into a butterfly. They explain to DJ that it is their day off and they won't be counting coconuts, so DJ asks the Beach Byrds to count the coconuts instead. He is serious, confident and likes taking risks. What a triumph, he says. Zak rushes off to the other end of the island, where there is a big bamboo bush, to collect some bamboo sticks. He has mended the wand and is ready to make the machine work. DJ explains that it may look different but it makes just as beautiful a sound. Todd can't decide what to paint. It doesn't look like he can carry on - and if Zak can't sing the song there'll be no Big Zing! Panzee comes up with the solution. Zak joins her and starts to sing his song Panzee, I'm Sorry. They can play a song about being fast. Todd won't let Zak have his spare belt from the arch because the machine will fall apart, so he decides the only belt is from his trousers. Drum is particularly enamoured with the clickety-clackety castanet playing, and the flamenco dancer, Verena, throws some castanets up to her. Gravel and Granite then persuade Todd to lend them his sofa and watch another Big Zing - Julian Lloyd Webber playing the cello with the ZingZillas. The lights are still flashing but the ZingZillas. BradleyDenise Cassar1 July 2010 (2010-07-01) Whilst doing some repairs in the clubhouse Todd accidentally knocks Drum's cuddly toy, Yapple, into his tool box and carries her off. The ZingZillas had to find Todd so he could help them find the Beach Byrds. Guest performer: Dame Evelyn Glennie 2020"Birthday Todd"Richard BradleySimon Davies 29 April 2010 (2010-04-29) It's Todd's birthday and he thinks nobody has remembered, but Panzee is planning to give Todd a surprise birthday party. When they rehearse for the Big Zing though their own ZingZilla sound doesn't sound quite right. Gravel thinks Granite needs glasses to see better, but first the first coconut falls and they have fun with ZingZilla Rock 'n' Rollin'. The ZingZillas wonder how they can possibly practise the Big Zing with all those lights flashing. DJ introduces Tang to the sounds of the celeste. Luckily though, Todd has an old camera and offers to take a new photo of Panzee to cheer her up. Guest performer: Dhinawan 22"Tang's Happy Day"Richard BradleyAlexandra Owen5 April 2010 (2010-04-05) It's a beautiful sunny day and Tang has decided to play a really happy song for the Big Zing. Eventually they play it so fast that they can't keep up and they have to start all over again. The ZingZillas can't believe Drum has lost the castanets again. However when they all rehearse Todd's voice sounds more like a parrot.
